EVERGREEN LODGE.

The annual catalogue of Evergreen Lodge has just been issued from the CHRONICLE job rooms. It is a well arranged description of the numerous plants, flowers, etc., to be found at the Lodge with suitable illustrations, and contains much that will entertain those who are interested in floriculture. The catalogue compared with those of former years, shows numerous additions to the list of rare plants and exotics. Capt. Crisman is sparing no pains to make the Lodge attractive and equal to any flower garden in the country.

Its business advancement is most gratifying. Plants will be shipped this year to all parts of the South, and the Lodge is becoming as well known in all the Gulf States as it is at home.

Mr. James Morton, a very accomplished gardener, has recently been in charge of the Lodge. We copy the following concerning him from the catalogue:

He has the endorsement of the celebrated gardener, Mr. James Davies, with whom he served his apprenticeship in the Bessemer Gardens of the Earl of Besborough. He is also very strongly endorsed by Mr. A. Young, the manager of Amesley Park Gardens, Nottingham, where he was employed more than two years as journeyman. Has the unequalled endorsement of Mr. Edward Evans, of Stora Gardens, Widdowes, England, where he was employed as gardener for three years, and carries with him a most complimentary letter from the old and most reputable house of Francis and Arthur Dickson & Sons, Seedsmen to the Queen, Upton Nurseries, near Chester. For the past four years Mr. Morton has been manager for Hon. L. W. Combs of Corning, Conn., who has the most beautiful private gardens and finest conservatory in New England.

Death of Robert Edmondson, Esq.

To the Chronicle:

Robert Edmondson died February 7, 1885, aged 66 years. He filled several offices of trust in the county, such as County Surveyor and Justice of the Peace. Any trust reposed in his hands was always faithfully kept. His integrity is without a stain. He leaves behind him no man who can say he purposely wronged or defrauded him. But perhaps his crowning virtue was his open-handed generosity and his compassion for the needy and the suffering. His ear was always open to the cry of distress, and his hand always ready to relieve it as far as he could. It has long been observed that he lived as much for others as for himself—perhaps more for others than for himself. Toward himself he was self-denying—toward others open-handed. He was a Christian in profession and practice; and, as was to be expected, he lived strong in the faith. Such men have the confidence and respect of every one, and in God's sight are the true heroes of this world. R.

Death of Bishop Parker.

Bishop Linus Parker of the M. E. Church, South, died in New Orleans Thursday, Feb. 6, 1885, of paralysis. The New Orleans Times-Democrat pays him the following tribute:

The character of the deceased was one of great nobility and modesty. His charity was unbounded, and he was noted for his dislike of controversy, both in the pulpit and in the conduct of the journal which he owned, much to his earnest and well-directed efforts. With all this he was a man of great firmness, and pursued the work he had chosen to perform without swerving ever in the least from the rigid line of self-imposed duty. He was a graceful speaker, possessed the happy faculty of bringing out the latent meaning of the text selected for his discourse. In his personal intercourse his manners were urbane and easy, and he was ever ready to sympathize with the sorrows and troubles of his fellow men. As a pastor, he was always diligent and faithful.

A Happy Marriage.

At the residence of the bride's father, W. H. Neblett, in Dickson county, Tenn., on the 11th inst. by the Rev. J. J. Comer, Rev. B. H. Johnson of the Tennessee Conference to Miss Julia V. Neblett. The attendants were J. R. Richardson and Miss M. A. Neblett, J. D. Kinzer and Miss Mary A. Neblett, Jno. Hight and Miss Sallie R. Wyatt. The bride is one of Dickson's fairest daughters and is very worthy of the distinguished young divine who has chosen her for his future companion. We tender them our hearty congratulations and trust that their large troupe auspiciously launched on the matrimonial sea, may have a fair voyage and find at last a safe and quiet harbor. They left immediately for their future home on the Santa Fe circuit.

THE LOWERING OF THE FLAG.

A new flag, from a new factory, improved the appearance of Lockert & Reynolds drug store. This flag is composed of two of the most popular and enterprising young men in Clarksville and their many friends are glad to note this evidence of their prosperity. They have an attractive advertisement in this issue of the CHRONICLE to which the attention of our readers is especially directed. Their stock of drugs, stationery, etc., is large, varied and well selected. They are prepared to sell their goods at reasonable prices and we take pleasure in recommending them to the public.

WHEN ROBERT EDMONDSON OF THE SOUTHSIDE, DIED LAST SATURDAY NIGHT,

one of the best citizens of the county passed away. He was generous to a fault and true to the core as a friend. He was greatly beloved by all of his neighbors, as was attested by the large crowd that attended his burial Sunday evening, and many tears were shed while the burial service was read by Revs. Lowe and Stephens. Peace to his ashes.

BILL MORROW

Will be hung April 17th unless the Governor intervenes a Parole.

The Supreme Court has affirmed the sentence of the court in the case of the State vs. Wm. Morrow for the murder of Dick Overton, and sentenced the defendant to be hung on the 17th of April. The opinion of the court was delivered last Saturday. We quote the following from the Nashville Banner:

Judge Cooper, in delivering the opinion, said, there is proof, principally consisting of the voluntary confessions of the prisoner, tending to show that the prisoner was at his own house in charge of the cave about three-quarters of a mile distant and there shot him to death, and on the next day, with the aid of his brother the prisoner carried the body some distance into the cave, where it was found several months afterward. It is not denied that these facts would make out a case of murder in the first degree. The bill of exceptions did not show that any evidence in relation to the condition of the child was offered, although the husband of the absent witness was examined, and he testified that his wife was not specially sick, merely suffering with rheumatism in her shoulder, and able, if she so desired, to attend court.

Judge Cooper then reviewed at length the defense in the case, showing that they charged the deceased with raping the daughter of the defendant, and that he was forced into trial after making an affidavit to the effect that his mother-in-law, a material witness by whom they wished to prove the fact of the rape, was absent on account of sickness. The trial judge, however gave an attachment for the witness, but no witness was made to bring her into court.

The prisoner received his sentence with composure. He did not utter a word until he was removed by an officer from the courtroom, when he asked, "What did they do with my case?" He was told that the judgment of hanging by the lower court had been affirmed, whereupon he replied: "I guess I will know it when they hang me." He was then taken back to jail. En route he talked much of common-places and did not refer to his fate. Ransom Morrow, when informed at the jail of his son's fate, burst into tears.

The opinion of the Supreme Court in the case of Ransom Morrow and P. F. Bellamy as accessories to the murder of Jim Brown, will be delivered today. The prisoners will probably be brought back to Clarksville next week.

WHEN an advertisement appears in a Clarksville paper, headed "come to stay" there is no use in stating the name of the advertiser. That phrase has so long been applied to a well known and honest dealer in the city that it is quite ill. He is one of our oldest subscribers and a child in this section connects it with him, and recognize it as readily as they would his name. Such an advertisement will be found elsewhere in this issue of the CHRONICLE. It gives a list of articles in the saddle and harness line that will be sold low down, dirt cheap. If you want a bargain call at once on "old come to stay."

Mrs. Mattie Bringham, wife of Mr.

Ed S. Bringham, died last Wednesday at her home in Winchester, Tenn. Mrs. Bringham was once a resident of Clarksville and had an extensive acquaintance here. She was much loved and respected by those who knew her and her death is deeply regretted. The remains were brought to this city and the funeral took place from the residence of Mr. Wm. Bringham Friday morning. Services by Dr. J. B. West and Dr. A. D. Sears, in the funeral home in Greenwood cemetery.

THE DEMOCRAT is respectfully informed that the individual who now turns the crank of the CHRONICLE's opinion mill, don't give a continental for what was in the Sky Blue platform or the Blue platform either, for that matter.

THE SOW has returned to her wallowing in the mire. We fear there is no hope for our bad neighbor, the Democrat. His wickedness seems to be constitutional. The poor thing can't help it.

Mr. J. J. Garrott wishes to inform the public that he has a number of fine mules for sale on reasonable terms.

The citizens of this city and vicinity should be proud of this institution. It commenced a few months since, turning out 18 pounds of butter the first day. During the first month the highest number of lbs. made one day was 100. It now makes an average of 160 pounds daily and has made 273 pounds in one day. Its capacity is 1,500 pounds per day. It has been located in Marion, Washington and Boyle counties, and has routes organized in Lincoln county. The contract with J. M. Brent & Co., of Chicago, Ill., was that the Lebanon creamery should have until spring or summer in which to locate routes and place cans. The can is a patent one, and no other creamery has the right to place cans in any county in which this creamery may locate there. The butter made is readily sold as fast as made at good prices. It pays for cream 25c per gallon and runs four skimming wagons to collect the cream purchased. In this way farmers secure good prices for their cream and have it taken to the river at Nashville, where it is sold at a profit. The creamery has been in operation for some time looking after its interests in New and Old Mexico, stating that he will again visit our city this week, and our people are in hope matters will assume a more promising shape.
